

In article <1993Apr9.181944.5353@e2big.mko.dec.com> steve@caboom.cbm.dec.com (Steve Katz) writes:

>Recently I managed to dislocate my shoulder while >skiing. The injury also seems to have damaged the nerves >in my arm. I was wondering if someone could point me towards >some literature that would give me some background into >these types of injuries. Please respond by EMAIL if possible.

Your medical school library should have books on peripheral nerve injuries. Probably it was your brachial plexus, so look that up.

Gordon Banks N3JXP | "Skepticism is the chastity of the intellect, and geb@cadre.dsl.pitt.edu | it is shameful to surrender it too soon."