

In article <1993Apr21.143910.5826@wvnmms.wvnet.edu> pk115050@wvnmms.wvnet.edu writes:

>My girlfriend is in pain from kidney stones. She says that because she has no >medical insurance, she cannot get them removed.

>My question: Is there any way she can treat them herself, or at least mitigate >their effects? Any help is deeply appreciated. (Advice, referral to literature,

Morphine or demerol is about the only effective way of stopping pain that severe. Obviously, she'll need a prescription to get such drugs.

Can't she go to the county hospital or something?

Gordon Banks N3JXP | "Skepticism is the chastity of the intellect, and geb@cadre.dsl.pitt.edu | it is shameful to surrender it too soon."