

Sharon Paulson (paulson@tab00.larc.nasa.gov) wrote:

: Once again we are waiting. I have been thinking that it would be good
: to get to as large a group as possible to see if anyone has any : experience with this kind of thing. I know that members of the medical : community are sometimes loathe to admit the importance that diet and
: foods play in our general health and well-being. Anyway, as you can
: guess, I am worried sick about this, and would appreciate any ideas
: anyone out there has. Sorry to be so wordy but I wanted to really get : across what is going on here.

I don't know anything specifically, but I have one further anecdote. A colleague of mine had a child with a serious congenital disease, tuberous sclerosis. Along with mental retardation comes a serious seizure disorder.
The parents noticed that one thing that would precipitate a seizure was a meal with corn in it. I have always wondered about the connection, and further about other dietary ingredients that might precipitate seizures.
Other experiences would be interesting to hear about from netters.

David Ozonoff, MD, MPH |Boston University School of Public Health
dozonoff@med-itvax1.bu.edu |80 East Concord St., T3C
(617) 638-4620 |Boston, MA 02118