

In article <1993Apr22.011720.28958@midway.uchicago.edu>, dgf1@quads.uchicago.edu (David Farley) writes:

|> In article <C5uHIM.JFq@rot.qc.ca> beaver@rot.qc.ca (Andre Boivert) writes:

|> >I am looking for comments from people who have used/heard about PhotoShop

|> >for Windows. Is it good? How does it compare to the Mac version? Is there

|> >a lot of bugs (I heard the Windows version needs "fine-tuning")?

|> >Any comments would be greatly appreciated..

|> >Thank you.

|> >Andre Boisvert

|> >beaver@rot.qc.ca

|> An review of both the Mac and Windows versions in either PC Week or Info

|> World this week, said that the Windows version was considerably slower

|> than the Mac. A more useful comparison would have been between PhotoStyler

|> and PhotoShop for Windows. David

I don't know about that...I've used Photoshop 2.5 on both a 486dx-50 and a Quadra 950...I'd say they are roughly equal. If anything the 486 was faster.

Both systems were running in 24 bit color and had the same amount of RAM (16 megs)

I also believe the quadra had one of those photoshop accelerators.